Foreword

The object of the compiler has been to provide a reliable book of reference which will enable a ringer who may be visiting a strange district on business, or on holiday, to ascertain how many bells there are—provided there are not less than five—in a particular tower, and when the local ringers practise. It is also hoped that the book will be of material assistance to the increasing number of ringers who organize ringing tours and outings.

The information in the omnibus alphabetical section comprises the dedication of the church, number of bells, weight and note of the tenor bell, and the practice night (the last named only where it is understood to be regular).

The alphabetical section includes towers which contain five or more bells, whether hung for ringing or fixed rigid for chiming only, as well as chimes of hemispherical and tubular bells, and it may be asked why bells which are not ringable have been included. The writer, acting upon information derived from a county directory, once sent a band of ringers on their outing to a tower reputed to contain six bells, and on arrival to “ring,” with the Vicar’s consent, they were confronted by a set of tubular bells. As the proportion of towers which contain “fixed” bells or chimes of tubes, etc., is so small, the cost of including them in the alphabetical section is negligible, and it is felt that their inclusion may serve some purpose, and save disappointment to anyone who might otherwise visit a tower in the hope of being able to ring there.

The county section is devoted entirely to ringing peals, but makes no claim to indicate any towers where the bells may be temporarily or permanently unringable, owing to the rapidity with which bell restorations are being carried out at the present time.

It has not been found practicable to include the names and addresses of local tower secretaries, as these are liable to frequent alteration, and in any case up-to-date information is usually to be found in Association reports.

Appendices deal with notable bells, which deserve mention on account of their great weight or their foreign origin, for the benefit of those ringers whose interest in bells may be academic; while for the interest of those whose ambitions are centred upon the higher numbers, or upon the Cathedrals, there are up-to-date lists of all the tens and twelves and of the Cathedral bells of Great Britain.

JOHN SMITH & SONS, MIDLAND CLOCK WORKS, DERBY, LTD.
QUEEN STREET, DERBY

It will be noted that in quite a number of cases the weights of the tenors, not only in the higher numbers but also in the smaller, differ from the accepted weights which have been published in the Ringling World for many years and are shown in various Association reports. Absolute accuracy in a first edition of this nature cannot, of course, be guaranteed, but as far as can be determined the weights shown are the authentic ones which in most cases have been supplied by the bellfounders.

While the writer had been negotiating for the publication of a work on these lines in 1934, but had abandoned the idea, the appearance of the book at the present time is the outcome of the suggestion made in the Ringling World of 13th May, 1949, by Group Captain A. V. Lister, of Apperley, Glos, that the Central Council might embark upon such a project. The decision to publish the work independently was only taken after obtaining Group Captain Lister's consent to act upon his suggestion, and after first offering the manuscript to the Central Council.

Acknowledgment must be given to Mr. W. H. Viggers, an Honorary Member of the Council, for his material assistance and for the benefit of his experience in ringing publications. Sincere thanks must also be given to the vast number of ringers—too numerous to acknowledge individually—who responded to the appeal in the Ringling World for information, and to the "Big Three" of the bellfounding industry, who have all gone to considerable trouble to supply data, and without whose co-operation the degree of accuracy which the list has reached would have been impossible.

The work is not, as had been supposed, the first of its kind, since about seventy years ago the Revs. J. E. and R. H. D. Ackland-Troyte published their Change Ringers' Guide to the Steeples of England. The writer learned of this only when his book was ready for printing, and whereas there is little comparison in that this previous work gave details of only about 600 rings as against nearly ten times that number in this book, any other similarity in presentation is purely coincidental.

While no effort has been spared to ensure the utmost reliability, the compiler would welcome any corrections, additions or suggestions for improvement, should the response to this publication warrant a future edition.

The cost of publication has been materially subsidized by our advertisers. It is hoped that ringers will reciprocate if and when opportunity arises, and a reference to the Guide might encourage the advertisers' continued support in the future.

Attention is drawn to the fact that Monmouthshire, while politically an English County, is included under the Welsh section. The reason for this is that this book follows ecclesiastical boundaries, and the County of Monmouth is under the jurisdiction of the Church of Wales.

IRELAND

Neither the Church nor the Irish Association recognizes any artificial division of the country into Northern Ireland and the Republic of Eire, and for this reason the country is treated as one unit; but for the information of intending visitors who will have to negotiate entrance formalities, etc., Northern Ireland comprises the Counties of Antrim, Armagh, Derry, Down, Fermanagh and Tyrone, and the remainder of the Counties form Eire.

It is necessary to distinguish between the Church of Ireland and the Roman Catholic Church, especially as in more than one instance there are two Cathedrals or Churches in one place, each with bells and each bearing the same dedication.

To clarify matters, each Church or Cathedral is shown marked "C.I.," indicating the Church of Ireland, or "R.C.," Roman Catholic.

APPENDICES

The Cathedrals of England

With the exception of Bristol, where there are only four bells, all the Cathedral Churches of England possess five bells or more.

At Coventry a chime of fourteen bells replaces a former ring of ten, and while the new bells were cast to ringing weights and drilled for fitting to ringing headstocks, the chances of their ever being hung for ringing are infinitesimal.

The five bells at Ely, Norwich and Salisbury are clock bells only, and the five bells at Peterborough, while hung for ringing, are not now rung owing to fears for the safety of the fabric.

The ring of eight at the Cathedral Church of S. German (Peel), in the Isle of Man, cannot now be rung owing to obstruction by carillon hammers, and the bells are sounded by Ellacombe hammers.

Below is a complete list of English Cathedrals which possess ringing peals.

Rings of Twelve Bells

IN 1939 Newport (Mon) Cathedral became the fifty-ninth ring of twelve bells. Four rings of twelve were lost by enemy action in World War II, and since the war Birmingham Cathedral bells have been augmented to twelve.

The new ring of twelve for Liverpool Cathedral has been cast, and is at the Cathedral awaiting erection when the tower is completed, while the old ring of twelve from S. Nicholas', Liverpool, was taken down for safety during the war and has not yet been returned.

Thus the total number of rings of twelve stands today at fifty-seven, two of which are not at present hung, and all but two are in England.

There are twelve ringing bells at the two Irish Cathedrals of Derry and Christ Church, Dublin, but both are rings of ten with half-tones.

The heaviest twelve at present is Exeter Cathedral, which, however, will step down to second place when the new twelve at Liverpool Cathedral is hung. The lightest twelve is at Surfleet, Lincs.

Rings of Ten Bells

BEFORE World War II there were one hundred and seventy-one rings of ten bells. Birmingham Cathedral has since joined the list of twelve-bell towers, and six rings of ten were lost by enemy action, one having since been replaced. With one new ring of ten, and twelve post-war augmentations from eight to ten, there are today one hundred and seventy-eight rings of ten.

Of these one hundred and fifty-nine are in England, three in Wales, three in Scotland, six in Ireland, one in Africa, two in Canada, one in New Zealand and three in the United States. Four or five of the bells at Notre Dame, Montreal, are now rung by means of electric motors.

After retuning, the ten at Wells still possesses the heaviest tenor. The Loughborough Bell Foundry Campanile has the lightest ring of ten, and the recently augmented ring at Grundisburgh, Suffolk, has become the lightest ten in a church tower and supplants North Stoneham, Hants, in this position.

Below is a complete list of rings of ten throughout the world in order of weight of the tenor bell.

Rings of Eight Bells

As far as can be ascertained, these number 1,604, including thirty-six overseas, the heaviest tenor being Sherborne Abbey (46 cwt.) and the lightest presumably the Lye, Worcs, where there are Belgian bells, with a tenor of $3\frac{1}{2}$ cwt.

Rings of Six Bells

THESE number 2,587, including nine overseas, the heaviest being Queen Camel, Somerset (36-3-7), and as far as can be ascertained the lightest at Brockenhurst, with a tenor of 4-1-12.

A number of augmentations from six to eight and from five to six are probable in the near future, and the total is therefore liable to alteration.

Rings of Five Bells

THE number of fives at the time of going to press appears to be 1,069 (one overseas), but a number of augmentations are being considered. Some are provisionally ordered, subject to the usual legal formalities, and the total stated is unlikely to remain.

The heaviest five appears to be at Tass, New South Wales, with a tenor of $26\frac{1}{2}$ cwt., followed by Isleham, Cambs, and Walton, Somerset, each with a tenor reputed to be 25 cwt., and Thorncombe, Dorset, coming next with a tenor known to be 21-0-24.

The reputed lightest five seems to be at Wootton Rivers, Wilts, with a tenor of $3\frac{1}{2}$ cwt., which ties with S. Paul's, Papanui, New Zealand, where the tenor is also reputed to be $3\frac{1}{2}$ cwt.

These are followed closely by Hascombe, Surrey, whose tenor is known to be only 3-3-17.

Roman Catholic Churches

THE number of Roman Catholic Churches in England with rings of bells is comparatively small, and numerically the North surpasses the South, especially Lancashire, where in the Fylde Branch of the Lancashire Association four out of thirteen rings are in Roman Catholic Churches.

Wales and Scotland possess no ringing peals in Roman Catholic Churches, and Ireland five, including three out of the four rings of ten in Roman Catholic Churches.

The following is believed to be a complete list:

Ring of Twelve:	Chorley, Lancs.
Buckfast Abbey.	Clapham Common, S.W.11.
Rings of Ten:	Cork, Cathedral of S. Mary.
Dublin, S. John Bapt.	Dublin, S. Paul's Arran Quay.
Lancaster Cathedral.	Erdington, Birmingham.
Limerick, Mount S. Alphonsus.	Holbeck, Leeds.
Wexford, The Immaculate Conception.	Leamington.
Rings of Eight:	Liverpool, S. Francis Xavier.
Ansdell, Lytham, Lancs.	Sheffield, S. Marie's.
Bamber Bridge, Lancs.	Rings of Six:
Birmingham Cathedral.	Kirkham, Lancs.
Blackhill, Co. Durham.	Lytham, Lancs.
Blackpool.	Rainhill, Lancs.
Cambridge.	Ring of Five:
Cheadle, Staffs.	Thurnham, Lancs.

Nonconformist Churches

THE "Free Churches" now possess only four rings, confined to the North. There was a ring of six at Lightcliffe Congregational Church, near Halifax, but the fourth and fifth bells were sold in 1938, and the remainder hung "dead" for use as clock bells only.

The Nonconformist Churches with rings are as follows:

- Gorton, Manchester—Brookfield Unitarian Church, eight bells.
- Todmorden, Lancs—Unitarian Church, eight bells.
- Saltaire, Shipley, Yorks—Congregational Church, six bells.
- Hebburn, Co. Durham—Presbyterian Church, six bells.

Secular Towers

EIGHT "secular" buildings in the British Isles possess ringing peals, viz.:

Manchester Town Hall ..	12	Morpeth, Co. Durham, Watch Tower ..	8
Imperial Institute, Kensington ..	10	Windsor Castle ..	8
Loughborough Bell Foundry ..	10	Oxford, The Carfax Tower ..	6

At present the bells at Berwick-on-Tweed Town Hall are chimed by means of ropes attached to the clappers.

In addition to the proper "rings" at the above, the four quarter bells, largest about 16 cwt., at the Municipal Buildings, Liverpool, are hung for ringing, and are rung on civic occasions with the 40 cwt. hour bell "clocked."

Overseas there are "secular" rings at:

Foreign Bells

EXAMPLES of Belgian and French bells are rare in this country.

The light ring of eight at Lye in Worcestershire is the only complete "ring" of Belgian bells. Seven of the eight bells at S. Augustine's, Kilburn, and five of the octave at Lower Beeding, Sussex, are of Belgian origin.

The carillons at Eaton Hall, Cheshire, and at Cattistock, Dorset (where the back eight was hung for ringing), also came from Belgium, but the Cattistock bells were destroyed by fire in 1940 and are to be replaced by a carillon as well as a ringing peal from the Whitechapel Foundry.

There is also a chime of eleven Belgian bells at the Town Hall, Lerwick, in the Shetland Islands.

Work of French founders can be found at S. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church, Jersey (five swinging bells), the chime of eight at Leigh-on-Sea Roman Catholic Church, and the four swinging bells—counterbalanced for slow swinging—at S. John's Church, S. Leonards-on-Sea.

The only known example of American bells in the British Isles appears to be a chime of thirteen bells at the "Auld Kirk" of Falkirk.

The eight bells at the Roman Catholic Church of S. Francis of Assisi, Holbeck, Leeds, came from the foundry of Byrne of Dublin, and are equipped with fabricated steel channel wheels.

Rings of Steel Bells

AN attempt was made about eighty years ago by the firm of Naylor Vickers, of Sheffield, to market steel bells in competition with bell metal bells. At least twenty such rings of five or more steel bells were hung, apart from rings and chimes of fewer than five bells and many single bells.

Fortunately, these discordant products are no longer made; their increasing rarity, however, makes them of some interest.

The eight steel bells from S. Giles', Edinburgh, have been distributed as single bells, while two rings of six steel bells at Belper, Derbyshire, and Wanstead, Essex, have been replaced by new rings (eight at Belper and six at Wanstead) from the Loughborough Foundry.

The following rings of steel bells remain:

The North-West:

S. Luke's, Liverpool	8
S. Mary's, Walton-on-the-Hill, Liverpool	6

The North and the East:

S. Nicholas's, Great Yarmouth ..	12
S. Martin's, York	8
Little Horkesley, Essex	5

The ring of six at Clyst S. George, Devon, was badly damaged but did not suffer total destruction and its restoration is planned.

The ring of ten at Southampton has been replaced by a new ring, and was the first to be replaced. Metal from the Holy Rood, Southampton, bells was used to provide two trebles to augment S. Michael's, Southampton, to ten, as it is not intended to rebuild the Holy Rood.

A new ring of eight has been cast to replace the lost six at Walton-on-the-Hill, and may be fixed by the time these notes appear.

All Hallows, Barking, tower was rendered unsafe to carry a ringing peal and a chime of eighteen bells has been installed.

Mention has been made previously of the ring of eight lost by fire at Cattistock, Dorset, during the war, but not through enemy action. A similar fate overtook the ring of eight in the tower of the round church of All Saints, Pilgrim Street, Newcastle-on-Tyne, which was destroyed in 1946, and the ring of eight at Mitcham Parish Church, Walsden Church, Lancashire, was burnt out in May, 1948, but the bells were apparently saved, although they cannot be rung pending repairs to the fabric. At least two bells of the chime at S. George's, Greenock, were cracked by fire.

Eight out of ten chiming bells at S. James, Selby, were destroyed when the spire collapsed as a result of an aircraft colliding with it, but these bells are about to be replaced.

It is not unfitting to quote the following extract from the Annual Report for 1948 of the Irish Association of Change Ringers:

"During the year one or two reports appeared in the Irish Press regarding accidents to bells. It cannot be too strongly stressed that constant inspection is necessary to see that the bells and their fittings are being maintained in a safe condition. "Speaking of the condition of bells, attention is drawn to the increased cost of repairs, etc., and church authorities who have not already done so would be advised to ensure that the insurance adequately covers the present-day value of the bells and their fittings."

A more recent case was the breaking of the headstock of the tenor bell at Leeds Parish Church, the bell depicted on the front cover of this work, due to the clapper falling out and becoming lodged across an Ellacombe hammer in the path of the bell.

Notable Bells of the British Isles

As a matter of general interest the following is a list of all known bells in the British Isles weighing two tons and over, showing the position which the heaviest ringing bells hold in relation to all other heavy bells in the British Isles. This list includes not only heavy tenors of ringing peals and bass bells of chimes and carillons, but single ringing and clock bells.

It will be seen that only two bells weighing more than two tons (Bow tenor and Manchester Exchange hour bell) were lost by enemy action during World War II, but Preston Town Hall hour bell and the four quarter bells have since been lost by fire, and the carillon at Abberley Hall, Worcestershire, has been demolished.

In order of weight these "notable bells" are as follows:

Carillons

The "carillon" of twenty-three or more bells, as distinct from "chimes" of less number, has little appeal in this country.

With the destruction of the Cattistock (Dorset) carillon there will be no carillon in any Anglican church until the new carillon, which is on order, is installed there, and with the disposal of most of the bells of the Eaton Hall (Cheshire) carillon, there are today only fourteen carillons in the British Isles.

Two are in Ireland and three in Scotland. Five are in Roman Catholic churches and cathedrals, two belong to the Church of Scotland, and the other seven are in secular buildings, viz., a war memorial campanile, two schools, a private estate, a town hall, a London store and inside a West End cinema organ.

Below is a complete list of all carillons of twenty-three or more bells (i.e., two chromatic octaves with or without the two lowest semitones) in the British Isles:

Smiths

ELECTRIC TOWER CLOCKS

Just as time cannot be halted, so too the progress of Smiths in clock-making reaches daily higher levels. The experience of centuries has produced these masterpieces in Tower Clock mechanisms. Smiths are specialists in every development of Tower Clocks, from an hourly strike mechanism to full Westminster chiming mechanisms, complete with suitable bells. Full details and photographs of the many Smiths successful Tower Clock installations are available on request.
